AIR SERVICE URGED FOR KWANGTUNG

S. China Backward In Communications.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE PETITION.

Canton, Yesterday.

The Provincial Chamber of Commerce will petition to the Southwest Political Council and the Kwangtung Provincial Government to maintain a commercial air service in this province.

Declaring that aerial communication has made great strides in Europe and America, the petition points out that communication between Canton and other districts in the province is very slow and should be speeded up by an air service. The difficulty is much greater as regards communication between Canton and places in Yunnan and Szechuen.

The petition further states that an air mail service will be soon started between Canton and Shanghai and that important places in Kwangtung should be linked up by the same means. If Canton is connected with other towns in this province and elsewhere by an air line the prosperity of this province is well assured.

It is further pointed out that air service is included in the Three-Year Plan and should therefore be materialized as soon as possible.—Central Press.

JAPANESE STILL IN SHANHAIKUAN

Telegraph Office Wanted.

MR. LIU'S REPORT.

Peking, Yesterday.

Mr. Liu Shih-shen, a member of the Luanung Refreresion Commission, who went to Shanhaikuan to endeavour to arrange to take over the Shanhaikuan walled city from the Japanese, returned this morning without accomplishing his mission.

Mr. Liu ascribes the Japanese failure to hand over the city to the fact that since General Muto, Commander-in-Chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, died, there is no responsible person at Changchun to make the decision, as General Hishikari has not yet arrived.

Mr. Liu also states that the Japanese wish to establish a telegraph office at Shanhaikuan and maintain it there even after the retrocession of the City.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

FIRE TRIAL ENDS

L. L. HARRIS SENTENCED TO 14 YEARS

All 16 Receive Gaol Terms.

JUDGE'S SCATHING SUMMING-UP

London, Yesterday.

Sentences ranging from 14 years penal servitude for the leader, Leopold Louis Harris, to four months imprisonment for minor defendants, were today imposed on the 16 men found guilty at the Old Bailey yesterday on charges of conspiracy to cause fires in London in order to defraud insurance companies.—Reuter.

"The lowest depths of infamy were reached when Capson's wretched wife was set to do the actual burning," declared Judge Humphreys, referring to the burning of a silk company's premises in Oxford Street, London, when concluding his remarks after a 13-hour summing up in the London fire conspiracy trial.

The trial, which is the longest ever held in the Old Bailey, came to an end yesterday, when the jury, after a 44-hour retirement found all 16 defendants guilty on a varying number of counts. Sentences will be pronounced today, thus bringing to a close the 6½ weeks' hearing.

The jury retired at noon yesterday to consider verdicts dealing with at least 141 counts involved in 14 different fires, alleged to have been started by a "fire-raising gang."

Leopold Louis Harris, who is charged on 32 counts pleaded guilty to 25, including nine charges of arson. Judge Humphreys instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty on the remaining seven charges.

Five other defendants, including Louis Jarvis, pleaded guilty to 48 charges while 10 defendants pleaded not guilty to all charges against them.

A feature of Judge Humphreys summing-up was his scathing attack on Capson, whom he described as a blackmailer and a highly dangerous criminal, though, he added, it was impossible to prosecute him. His chief regret was that he was unable to pass on Capson the sentence he so richly deserved.

The proceeding are estimated to have cost £50,000 the fees of one counsel alone, together with "refreshers", having amounted to £5,000. The cost of 200 witnesses has also to be met.—Reuter.

INDIAN COTTON FOR BRITAIN.

20,000 BALES FOR SHIPMENT.

London, Yesterday.

A great advance has been made towards the fulfilment of a scheme to establish a new Anglo-Indian organisation to secure co-operation between Indian cotton-growers and Lancashire.

According to the Daily Telegraph a Manchester correspondent arrangements are being concluded for making a shipment of about 20,000 bales of Indian cotton to Britain which will be spun and woven in Lancashire and re-exported to India, to be marketed in co-operation with Indian growers.—Reuter.

SIGNIFICANT AUSTRO-ITALIAN CONFERENCE AT RIMINI.

Austrian Chancellor's Air Trip To Meet Mussolini.

Vienna, Yesterday.

The Austrian Chancellor, Dr. Engelbert Dollfuss left for Rimini Central Italy, by air to-day, to meet the Italian Premier, Signor Mussolini, who is spending a holiday at Rimini.

The meeting is significant in view of the Austro-German tension and the continuance of broad-front Nazi propaganda in Australia despite Germany's assurance, in reply to the Italian note, to tighten censorship on wireless talks.—Reuter.

40 - HOUR WEEK IN AMERICA

New Code For Steel Industry.

MINIMUM WAGE OVER 40 CENTS AN HOUR

Washington, Yesterday.

The new United States Steel Code has been approved by President Roosevelt. It provides for a 40-hour week, averaged over a three months' period, with 48 hours in a six-day week as a maximum per employee.

An eight-hour day is provided for all regular employees after November 1 or as soon after as production reaches 60 per cent. of capacity.

The Code is effective for 90 days as a trial period, and the agreement cites the opinion of the steel industries that the minimum wage of the fixed Code will exceed an average of 40 cents per hour.

Employees are allowed the right to organise in Trades Unions, with constraint.—Reuter.

U.S. INDUSTRIAL CODES.

Objections By Oil Producers.

Washington, Yesterday.

Although the United States Administration is making progress in putting the finishing touches to most of the Industrial Codes, the independent oil producers have declared that the Oil Code, which provides for Federal supervision and for rationing of production, will upset State provisions intended to accomplish the same end.

It is, however, believed that this difficulty will be smoothed out, permitting Roosevelt to complete all Code adjustments by to-day. After the adjustment, all industries must be ready to proceed under the new arrangements.—United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

LORD MARLEY GOES TO JAPAN.

Head Of Anti-War Delegation.

Shanghai, Yesterday.

Lord Marley, head of the Continental group of delegates to the Anti-War Convention, who arrived in Shanghai yesterday, left for Japan on the s.s. President Coolidge this morning. He expects to return to Shanghai within a few days.

The Conference will hold a three-day session in Shanghai commencing September 3, and the European party will later pay a visit to Japan. Whether they will visit Manchuria is at present uncertain.—Reuter's Pacific Service.

U.S. SHOULD SEEK TRADE WITH CHINA

Pittman Sees Great Market Here.

HIGHER, STEADY, SILVER TO HELP TRADE

Washington, Yesterday.

That the World Economic Conference had demonstrated the United States duty to seek reciprocal trade treaties with South America, Mexico and China, was the opinion expressed by Senator Key Pittman, Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in a broadcast address last night.

"They are our natural markets, and we theirs," he declared. "China is the greatest potential market in the world, and the Chinese are seeking close commercial relations with the United States."

Senator Pittman added that the Sino-American Treaty had been obstructed since 1928 by the slump in silver, and it was therefore necessary to enhance the price and to stabilise it before trade could be restored.

The London Silver Resolution was, he said, "the greatest forward step on behalf of silver money taken for a century."

He reiterated that he expects stabilisation to be between United States cents 66 and 70 per ounce.—United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

CHICAGO GRAIN TRADING RESTRICTIONS.

Chicago, Yesterday.

The board of Trade officials are understood to be contemplating the removal of restrictions on the fluctuations of the daily price of grain.

BOYCOTT OF GERMANY PROPOSED

London, Yesterday.

The British Labour Party has called for a boycott of German goods and services by the General Council of the Trades Union Congress, which meets at Brighton early in September.

The Council, stressing the severe setback sustained by international Trades-Unionism owing to the Nazi seizure of German Trades Unions, urges a boycott in the hope of bringing home to the German Government that the crimes committed cannot be condoned.

The ban must be made so effective that the German people will sweep away the present regime and revert to ways of freedom.—Reuter.

GRIM ALPS TRAGEDY

FOUR ETON MASTERS KILLED

One Victim's Brother In Far East.

PARTY SLIP DOWN GLACIER ON ROSEK PEAK

Pontresina, Yesterday.

A grim tragedy of the Alps, involving the deaths of four of Eton's most popular masters, one of whom has a brother at Weihaiwei, occurred near here, on Thursday last, when the party, who had made an assault on the treacherous slopes of Rosek Peak, slipped over a precipice and fell several hundred feet into a chasm.

The discovery, yesterday by a guide, of an ice-axe and snow spectacles on the 13,000-foot Rosek Peak in the Bernina Alps, was the first indication of the terrible tragedy which resulted in the deaths of three Eton house-masters, Mr. H. E. H. Howson, Mr. E. V. Slater and Mr. E. W. Powell and one assistant master, Mr. C. R. White-Thomson.

The bodies have not yet been recovered, but were seen huddled together at the foot of a dangerous precipice. They had evidently fallen several hundred feet.

The party, all of whom were expert climbers, left Samaden without guides on August 16 on what was intended to be their last expedition before returning to England.

They spent the night at Clerva Hut on the mountain-side and climbed Rosek Peak on Thursday, but apparently missed the way while descending and slipped on a glacier.

A rescue party was sent out immediately the guide reported the discovery of the bodies, but it was impossible to reach spot before to-day.

All four victims were very popular at Eton.

Mr. Powell is a well-known oarsman, having rowed in the Cambridge boat from 1906 to 1908. He also won the diamond sculls at Henley in 1912.

Mr. White-Thomson, a science master, is the eldest son of the Bishop of Ely.

Mr. Howson is a grandson of Dr. Hugh Butler, Master of the Trinity, while his brother commands a destroyer on the China Station.

None of the victims were married.—Reuter.

Mr. Howson is a brother of Commander J. M. Howson of H. M. S. Witch, of the 8th Destroyer Flotilla, which is at present at Weihaiwei. Commander Howson has been on the China Station for about four months.

ONLY FOUR TEAMS WITH 100 PER CENT. RECORDS

London, Yesterday.

The Hibernians, who are making their debut in the First Division of the Scottish Football League, caused a sensation yesterday when they held Glasgow Rangers, League Champions, to a goalless draw.

Queen of the South, another new team in the League this season, followed up their win against Celtic by visiting Third Lanark and securing both points by an odd goal margin.

Motherwell, who are expected to make a successful bid for the championship this year, again won. They are one of the four teams with a 100 per cent. record, and the season is only eight days old. Aberdeen, Queen's Park, the famous amateur team, and Queen of the South are the other three.

Chapter III. — THE SECOND ATTEMPT.

(By GERALD BURRARD)

Geoffrey smiled somewhat bitterly at the captain's good natured chaff. As a matter of fact, he had not explained all the reasons which had led up to his volunteering for what seemed to be almost certain death. It was true that he longed for the rolling uplands of Tibet, and that mysterious country of immense solitudes was calling again with a voice which was once more able to be heard above the cry of love. For Geoffrey had shortly before been engaged to a beautiful girl who had enjoyed the thrill of his engagement to a young and rising soldier during actual wartime, but who had jilted him, directly the armistice was signed, for an older man of vast wealth. Captain Monckton's unwitting remark about renewing acquaintance with the charming girl had brought all this episode in Geoffrey's life back into his mind in that queer way in which trifling commonplaces will frequently guide a long chain of thought. The initial numbness of the blow was beginning to wear off, for unknowingly Geoffrey had been more in love with an ideal than with the girl herself, a state which was more than common in France when men liked to picture quiet homes of their own far removed from the loathsome mud and all the accompanying horrors of modern war.

Nearly a month ago he had decided that he had done with women, and of course his mind was made up. Naturally, he was very glad to have been able to rescue any white girl from such a ghastly fate, but as for anything except polite inquiries—that was another matter. All the same, it certainly was extraordinary that the girl whom he had rescued at Port Said should happen to be the same one whom he had saved from another ordeal and whose face he had never forgotten.

How well Geoffrey remembered that dance to which he had been dragged by his fiancée during one of his spells of leave! Bored and unhappy—for he had never been a dancing man, and as soon as they had arrived his fiancée had left him for her regular partners—he had begun to wander aimlessly about the great house in which he found himself a guest. Suddenly he had heard the half-strangled and sobbing cry of a girl, "You brute! Let me go!" A few steps took him to an alcove across which a curtain was drawn, and on switching on the light Geoffrey had found the girl whom he now knew to be Phyllis Merridew forcibly held by a man named Hayde Thompson, who was covering her face with kisses. Geoffrey's sudden intrusion made Thompson lose his victim and turn with a foul oath. This was too much for Geoffrey, who knew his man, and he then and there went for Thompson, who immediately showed fight. But Geoffrey's blood and temper were up, and he made short work of his opponent, leaving him nursing a bleeding nose and mouth on a settee in the alcove, while he escorted the girl downstairs and at her request asked the maid to fetch her a taxi. He had cut short her protestations of thanks, knowing instinctively that she would prefer to be alone. And so it happened that he had not even asked her name, and had not seen her again until that morning.

Philip Hayde Thompson was a youngish man with the reputation of a sportsman. But when war was declared he had refused to join up, and had somehow or other, chiefly through the influence of a highly-placed relative, successfully eluded all military service. In the meantime he had amassed a great fortune and was reckoned as one of the richest men in London. Geoffrey and he had been schoolfellows, and their rivalry and mutual dislike dated back to their early teens.

By a curious accident Geoffrey had run into Thompson at the Foreign Office just as he was leaving the buildings after having volunteered for the very mission on which he was now engaged. This was the only occasion on which they had met since Geoffrey had administered that well-merited chastisement at the dance, and to Geoffrey's astonishment Thompson had been affixing himself. But Geoffrey, who had never been a good hand at hiding his dislikes, had cut him dead, and was more indignant than ever to learn that Thompson was actually an adviser to the Foreign Office on Oriental matters, as he was considered an expert on Eastern lands since much of his financial interest lay in the East.

Still pondering on the amazing coincidence of again meeting Phyllis Merridew under such dramatic circumstances, Geoffrey went below to his cabin, where he locked up the mysterious knife. He then made his way to the saloon for a late lunch. He had certainly had a full morning.

The Gangetic began her passage on the Canal soon after 3 p.m., and Geoffrey wandered aft to the second-class deck. He soon found Phyllis Merridew who appeared none the worse for her adventure. It was the first time she had been through the Suez Canal since she was a little girl, and Geoffrey encouraged her enthusiasm, thinking that the less she thought about her ordeal the better. It was not long, however, before she whispered, "Has anything happened?" He looked round before answering, and, seeing that they were well out of earshot of any of their fellow-passengers, told her that he had explained everything to the Captain, who had agreed with him that it were far better to say nothing, and he took the opportunity of cautioning her on the importance of silence.

"Of course, I won't breathe a word, except to father. He will want to thank you himself; and for the other time, too. Really, I cannot speak. My heart is too full. You were just wonderful—wonderful."

"Where is your father's mission?" asked Geoffrey, who was somewhat embarrassed by her enthusiasm.

"It used to be at Kotgarh, in the Himalayas, a few marches beyond Simla, but now he is going to take me with him to another one, where we will live all by ourselves right up among the snows."

"Oh, I suppose that is beyond China, farther up the Sutlej Valley and near the Tibetan frontier?" He knew there was a mission station there, and concluded this would be the one the girl meant.

"I don't think that was the name, but it certainly is near the frontier of Tibet."

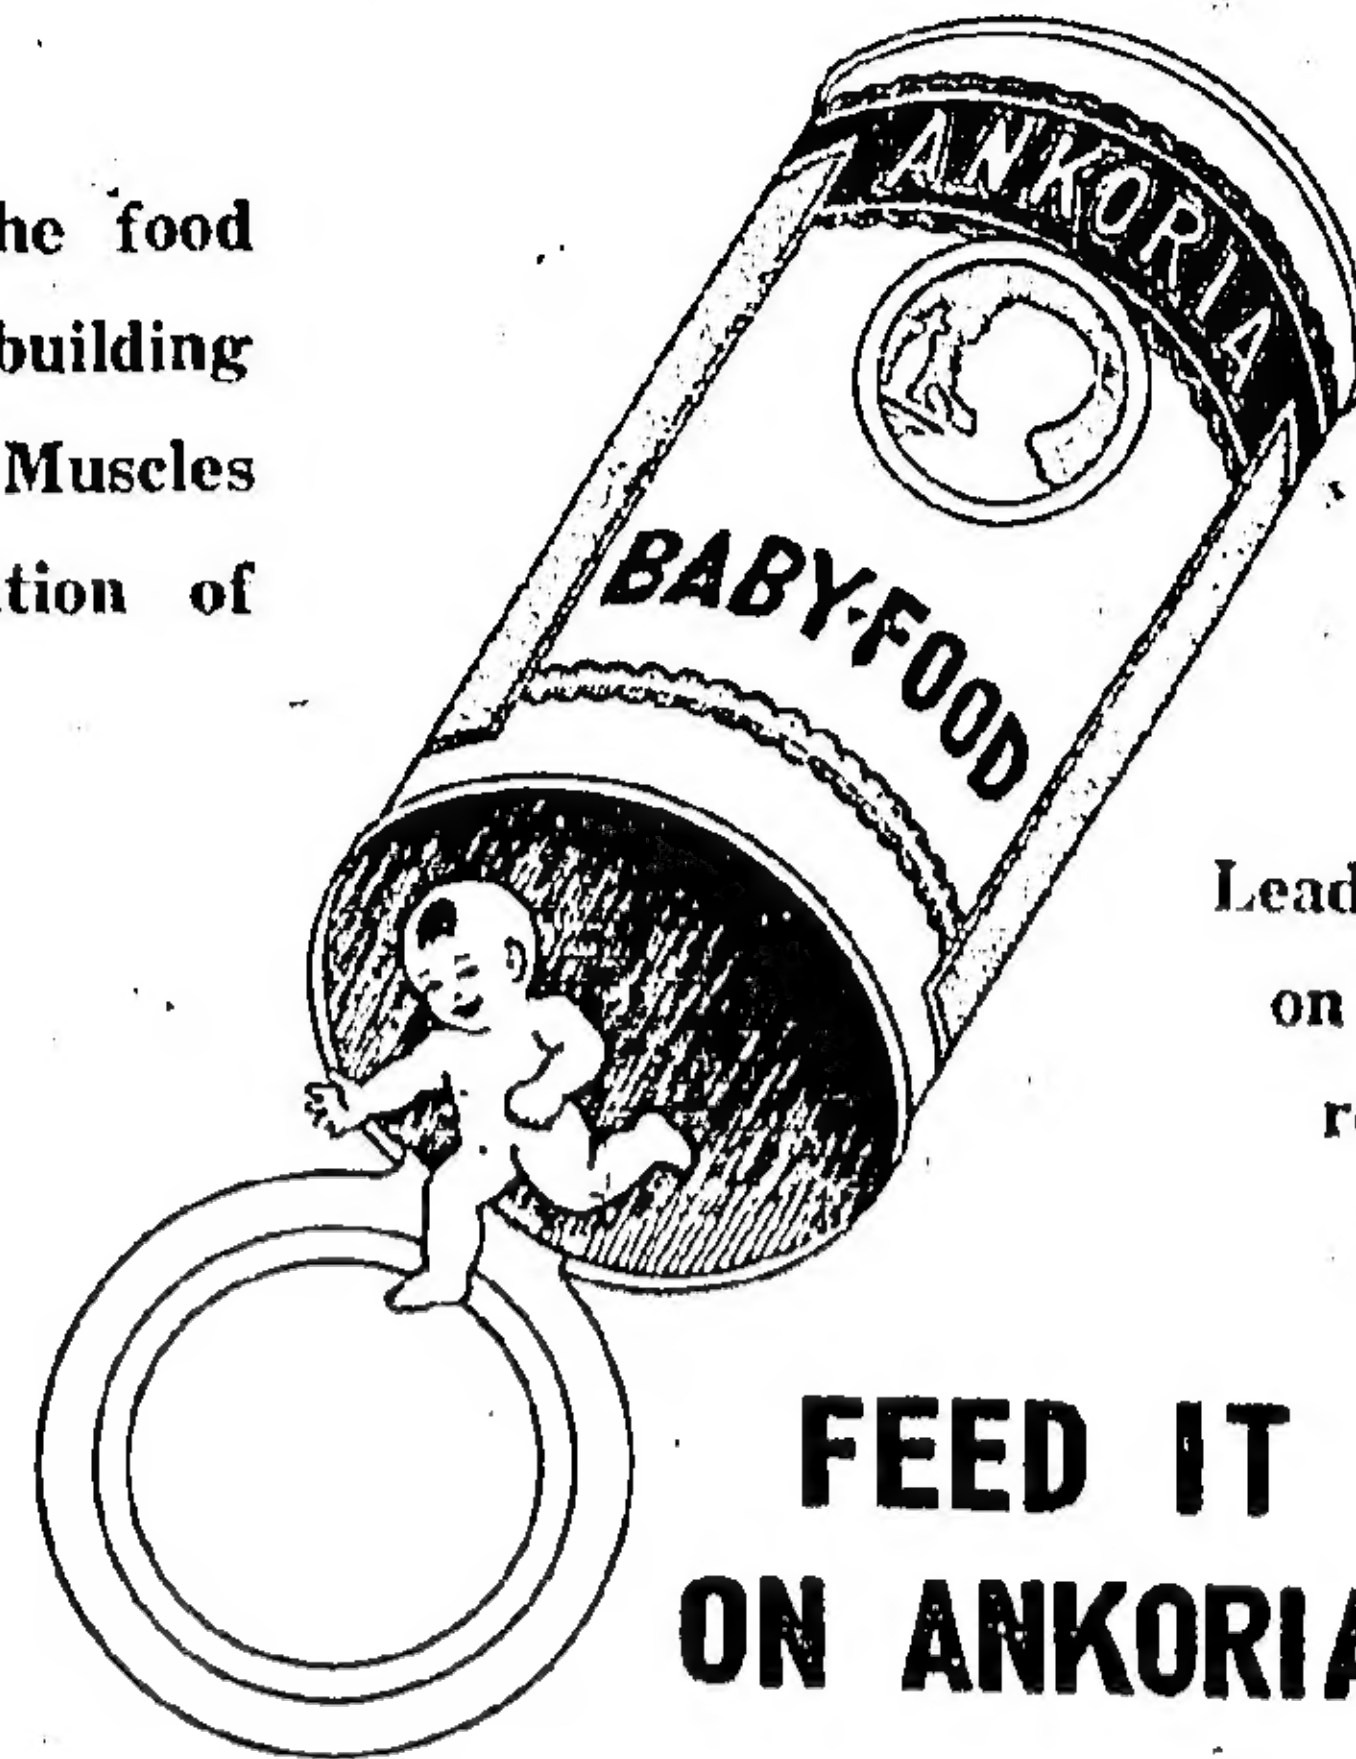

"No, Chini is not the name of the actual mission-station. It is a village where Lord Dalhousie, a former Viceroy, built a residence in which to live during the monsoon. Chini is situated right beyond the great Himalayan range and does not get nearly such a heavy rainfall as Simla and other places in the outer hills. I have shot all round there in both the Asrang and Baspal Valleys. It is a glorious country. You will love it." And Geoffrey went on to tell her of what is probably the most beautiful part of the Himalayas outside Kashmir.

The passage of the Red Sea was pleasantly cool, even for the time of year, owing to a headwind all the time. One evening Geoffrey had sat up on deck with Phyllis rather later than usual, for his trip to the second-class deck had been repeated on several occasions. They were in the Gulf of Aden, and Geoffrey had been telling her that sharks were probably more numerous here than

Mainly Women

DON'T EAT FOODLESS FOODS.

Nature has not made our bodies fool proof, said Sir Arthur Keith, the famous English doctor, making it quite clear that the problem of health or ill-health is, at bottom, economic in character.

So don't eat foodless foods to your own harm.

It is literally true that we are made from what we eat. The indifference to the science and art of eating is truly amazing. For purely commercial reasons some have given earnest study to scientific cattle feeding, but there are very few people who are acquainted with the principles of scientific self-feeding.

The most essential of all foods which make good blood is a purely produced MILK like the Snowflake brand which is the rich milk of New Zealand Jersey cows with the water eliminated. This is an absolute necessity for infants, growing children, and for adults.

FISH is owing to the superabundance of electricity it contains, is a most valuable food. The health method of cooking fish is to steam, boil, grill, or bake it.

WHITE MEATS are the best in this climate. Poultry, sheep brains, Tripe, New Zealand C. M. C. Ox Tongues, and the C.M.C. sheep's tongues. Trips should not be cooked with onions. Brains contain an extractive quality (mannan) that extracts for our benefit all the nutritive value of foods eaten with them.

The C.M.C. Ox Tongues packed in the highest quality gelatine are delicious, and easily digested.

OYSTERS are a most nutritious item of food. The Ozone Oysters packed in New Zealand by a special process have the finest flavour. Stewards Island where the ozone oysters are produced, is the largest oyster bed in the world, and it is strictly guarded by the health authorities. Ozone Oysters are the ones used in London, and Paris for the cocktails. As a soup, and as oyster patties it is unrivalled.

HOLLAND'S COOKED HAM (flavour sealed) are to be highly recommended as one of the health foods. Other blood making and blood purifying foods are the yolks of eggs. The yolk is better than the white. The proper albumen for our use is contained in Snowflake milk, and pure wheat.

VEGETABLES contain most valuable salts and phosphates. The finest form of vegetables in Hong Kong are Whitmore's Pickles produced in New Zealand under the strictest health laws. All the vegetables are carefully selected, cured in honey, and packed in wine vinegar. All the life giving elements are retained in these delicious sweet pickled vegetables.

THE COCOA NUT is a most valuable food for the blood, the joints, and the hair. It should be grated and eaten with other food. Brazil nuts are next in nutritive value.

HEALTH IN FRUIT DRINKS

To drink in health is a phrase we sometimes use when talking of a holiday. Deep draughts of pure invigorating air are drawn into our lungs and help us to store up new health and strength. In a still more literal way we can drink in health if we look well to the beverages we take from day to day. Except under special medical advice most women are better when they take no alcoholic drinks at all. Alcohol in any form robs the skin of its freshness, and is apt to coarsen its texture, and its tint. It is just as well to realize that water is every bit as necessary for the inside as the outside of our bodies. One of the pleasantest ways of taking in sufficient water is to drink Whitmore's famous Fruit Juices. These Juices are made in New Zealand from the purest fruit, and as a health giving drink they are excellent. Have a glass of Whitmore's fruit juice and water instead of an early cup of tea. Such a beverage is good for the blood, and helps to keep the complexion clear. The saltiness that suggests "liver" and the disfiguring blotches that indicate that the blood and digestion are out of order soon vanish after a course of Whitmore's Fruit Juices taken before breakfast. There is Orange, Lemon, Raspberry, and Passion Fruit. Then for fruit cocktails there is nothing better than Whitmore's. They are refreshing morning or evening all the year round.

HONEY—Keep pure honey in the home. It is a most valuable item of diet for all the family. Doctor Grant Ramsay, Principal of the London Institute of Hygiene said that "Kapari" and "Royal Taste" brand of honey from New Zealand contained the highest percentage of mineral salts, and Doctor Josiah Oldfield the well-known English dietitian expressed his faith in this pure "Kapari" honey and its nourishing value and had proved its strength giving qualities.

CHEESE—A pure Cheese is one of the most important of health giving foods. It must be made from a full cream milk, and the famous "Maxam" cheese boasts all others in this respect. Maxam cheese won the world's championship at the recent Islington Show, London, against cheese from every part of the world. A well-known specialist said "The properties of Maxam Cheese are most beneficial to health because it possesses the maximum possible food value. It is recommended by doctors for people of weak digestive powers, and is rare among foods because it is exquisite to the palate while possessing every body building quality. It is economical because there is no rind and therefore no waste."

The Velveteen Vogue In Paris

White Mat-Silken Jackets.

A velveteen vogue that has recently been seen at smart social functions in Paris is a shoulder capelet combined to go with shoes to wear with floral printed Chino frocks, plain deep blue velveteen on one occasion being featured next a deep blue and white floral printed frock. A shady hat was worn, but since velvet is coming into the autumn "spot-light" one of the new turbans with neatly pleated swathed head fittings and puckish pointed crowns would be effective.

Except for organdie and exotic garden party frocks, the better skirt length when overcoats and capelets are worn over floral printed and chiffon frocks. Black and white as well as blues and white are more numerous than other colour alliances.

Reverting to jackets, white ones have never looked smarter than when made from mat silken fabrics on semi-fitted lines with narrow belts arranged to criss-cross in front and fasten at either side on to black buttons. Black buttons may be reversed to chalk white or mother-of-pearl ones.

Black Sets Off White Organdie

PARIS.

MADAME Sert, the sister-in-law of Barbara Hutton, has just purchased a Chanel evening gown of great distinction. It is of embroidered white organdie, the cobweb tracery of flowers and leaves being in black. Reminiscent of Winterhalter, the "off the shoulder" movement of a double row of ruffles looks like sleeves in front and it has a capeline in the back. Madame Sert is the wife of the Spanish mural painter who did those lovely things at the Waldorf Astoria.

The Duchess of Portland has, among other things, Chanel's number 555 made in an "off-white" shade too pale to be called pink but with a whiff of something that makes you think "pink". The dress has an immensely wide skirt, composed of a myriad godets of tulle that are placed rather low and continue by their movement the line that criss-cross encrustation created over the hips. The tulle which covers the deep V decolletage is too ethereal to be called a cape, but falls in ruffles on either side.

Wooden Handbags

A surprising handbag is made of wood. The natural grain is there, and this purse is light, washable, waterproof and handmade. What more could you ask?

The "Cooling-Off" Wrap

New Accessory For Tennis.

THERE is much originality in the design of "cooling off" wraps. One tennis gown in white linen and tricot-mesh is supplied with a little jacket of the linen tricot with a turn-down collar of plain linen and a plain linen band gripping the waist-line.

Close wool-knit insertions of this order give ease and a decorative quality to summer lingerie sports coats and jackets.

Flowers Are The Vogue

Laces Popular For Hot August.

FLOWERS galore crowd into the boudoir attire—big and little subdued and brilliant—in the form of printed sheers and chiffons. The gowns are treated with feminine grace, having draped necks and sleeves, largely of the capelet type.

Laces, which always hold their own in summer, promise to have a greater vogue for hot August days. There are fine creamy natural laces over flesh colour, with brighter hues introduced at the belt; smarter are the dark ones combined with vivid tints. Imagine cocoa brown lace with robin's-egg blue spring anew with each season, are appearing in an embroidered peau d'ange lace, each big blossom being outlined in colour—red, green, blue and so on.

Popular All-Way Beach Gowns

THE skirts of the latest beach gowns have a front and back seam; moreover, they are quite flaring, which gives them almost the appearance of pyjamas when the wearer is walking. The bodice is plain and often square-cut, both front and back being not only of the same shape but equally high.

Obviously, they represent the popular all-day idea as applied to beach clothes, for they may be worn to cocktail parties, lunch, tea or evening dances—in fact, almost anywhere; but they are, in spite of their practical materials, such as striped linens, piques, cotton crashes—limited to the more decorative order of beach pursuits.

Lelong New Beach And Evening Gown

"The Soleil"

LELONG has a typical new beach and evening gown in fine white and pink candy-striped pique, with a square decollete and a square peplum effect. The trimming is black moire ribbon.

One of his most successful concealed-trouser frocks is called "Soleil." It is in white peau d'ange and has a deep oval decollete, surrounded by three narrow encrusted stripes in different colours. An and back being not only of the same fashion, can be used to fill in the decollete. One of the little elbow-length collarless capes featured by this creator goes with the frock.

Organdie For All Ages

What To Look For

SOME charming frocks in organdie, which this season is worn by women of all ages, are to be had in the sales. Those in the fancy and embroidered organdies remain crisp longer than the plain organdies, and are more suitable to the mature.

Two pieces in crepe de Chine, with "fly-away" three-quarter coats, can also be had at moderate prices; and clothes such as these, which are useful for garden parties, or other functions of the late season, are good buying.

Points On Mid-Season Colours

Unexpected Charm In Black And White.

GREY STILL FAVOURED

ENSEMBLES in all-black and all-white are full of unexpected charm and change. A black wool-romaine will have trimmings of black satin-cire to relieve its blackness, or georgette and wool broche of darkest surface will be decorated with the new and brightest silk fringe with frayed edging.

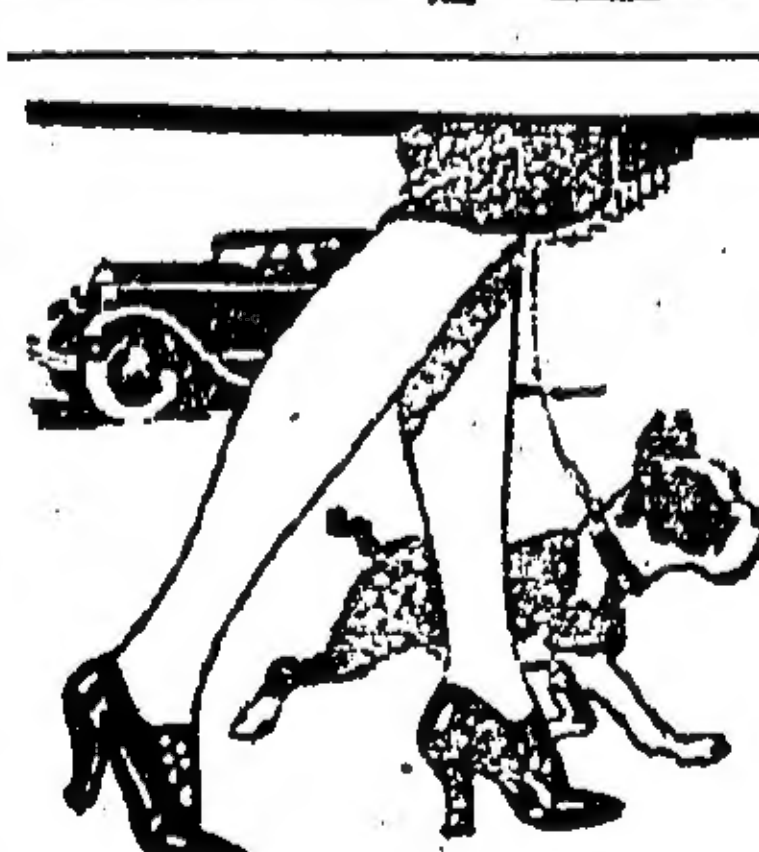

A new model in black moire for dinner wear has a series of soft tulle ruffles, whilst a dead-black faille has top sleeves and bolero of bright, sparkling jet. Crinkled taffeta is good for day or evening, and can be treated in picturesque style.

Contrast in the black tailored suit is helped by chromium and ivory buttons or braided cire. So it is that we get not one black, but many. Just as there seems no end to the possibilities of the black range, the same applies to white, with its tones and tints. There is just off-the-white and the blue icy-white, which is not so difficult to wear as it sounds, though older women may be best with the ivory and parchment tones. Wool moire is lovely in white, with parchment shades introduced.

White has an advantage over black in that it can be tempered with clinging tones in lace or handwork, whereas black lace is apt to be dowdy when on all-black frocks. The angelskin lace in a deep cream looks charming on a dead-white. The new string guipures are also good for the day time white ensembles.

A new fabric, keep only to an exclusive house, is white-wool-pique. There is softness in its weave that is missing in the cotton range.

A cinema frock in stiff black taffeta had a square neck opening and elbow-sleeves, with soft fichu and ruffles of old-world Indian muslin in white. There is a continuous desire to soften dull and shining surfaces, and so relieve any undue stiffness. White faille coats are worn over black frocks.

BOWLING GREEN AND CRAIGENGOWER LOSE IN SENIOR BOWLS

"BILL" BUTT FAVOURITE FOR TWO EVENTS

Surfboard Regatta At Repulse Bay.

LUIGI SOARES NEAREST RIVAL TO-DAY.

Big Ladies' Entry List.

(By A. E. L.)

"Bill" Butt, by reason of his experience and his quickness off the mark, is the favourite for the Men's 100 Yards event in to-day's Surfboard Regatta which will commence at 2.30 p.m. at Repulse Bay, providing conditions are favourable.

Butt has one of the best boards in the race, and in practice has shown his superiority, both in speed and starting ability, over his fellow competitors. It is no small secret that his cherished ambition is to set up an initial record for Hong Kong.

Butt has kept his real form under cover and never, except for final 50 yard sprints, has demonstrated his full capabilities. As a result, his best time for 100 yards to date is no better than the next best man on the list, Luigi Soares.

The latter has clocked 34 seconds dead on a non-racing board for this distance, but given favourable conditions there is every reason to expect that Butt will better this time by a full second or more.

The world's record is held by Tom Klakona, of Honolulu, who established a time of 31 1/5 seconds.

ASK THE MAN WHO OWNS ONE

"STYLE" as applied to the Packard, has always meant something more. Associated with it, logically and distinctively, is the other important word, "enduring"—a Packard characteristic for a third of a century.

So gradually and correctly has Packard style evolved—like the slow unfolding of a beautiful flower—it has never been at the mercy of that capricious mood which too often alienates to-morrow's style from that of to-day.

Austria And Germany.

GERMANY seems determined to realise her ambitions in Austria and the manner in which the Hitler Government have disregarded the request of the Powers to cease the campaign of wireless propaganda has created a tense situation. The purposeful and relentless campaign of the Nazis has not been checked despite the warnings to Berlin and Chancellor Hitler may soon be faced with a more direct ultimatum from Britain, France and Italy. The first intervention of the Powers was a mild one, and the Notes sent by the three Governments were described as "friendly." The series of incidents on the Austrian border, and the more threatening tone of the recent propaganda indicate that Hitler is prepared to continue to defy the Powers even if their attitude is stiffened. A grave situation would then arise and France would undoubtedly consider taking further action. The only solution apparent at the moment is that Mussolini may modify Hitler's attitude. Italy's relations with Germany have not been so intimately friendly since the Nazi regime commenced but close co-operation still exists between Rome and Berlin and it is believed that Mussolini could exert considerable influence on Germany's foreign policy. The Nazi case is not without merit. Germany and Austria are natural allies, political and economic, and union between two peoples with so much in common would be desirable from many aspects. The Nazis claim that they could resuscitate Austria and enable her to emerge from the financial chaos which has made her a burden to Europe since the War. France contends that extension of the German eastern frontier would complicate the European situation and tend to increase the divergence which is tending to divide Europe into two camps—Italy, Germany and Austria on the one hand, and France, Poland and the Little Entente on the other. The Nazis argue that Dr. Dollfuss, the Austrian Chancellor, who is now a virtual Dictator, is a French agent, and they have some substantiation for their claim that the Dollfuss Government cannot speak for all Austria. The Nazi party is very strong in Austria and it has been said that the Nazis would gain a majority if a general election were held. The diminutive Chancellor has evoked admiration for his courageous stand against Hitler, but he would help to clear a confusing situation if he could produce evidence that he has the support of most of his countrymen. Doubts as to the security of his Government weaken his position. However, he is to meet Premier Mussolini over the week-end and any understanding he could achieve with Il Duce would relieve most of the anxieties felt in European capitals.

Hong Kong's New Industry.

THE opening of the Hong Kong Brewery has advanced the industrial development of the Colony considerably. That development has been small and unpromising till now, but successful operation of the plant at Sham Tseng Bay may provide incentive to other concerns. While Hong Kong will always remain primarily a port and a distributing centre, the opportunity is here—and will eventually be availed of—for industrial expansion. Of the Brewery, it may be said that the prospects for successful operation are excellent. The samples distributed at the opening ceremony were universally approved and it was spontaneously agreed that the beer was good beer. As a local product it will be assured of some support, but its popularity will rest on the fact that the Brewery will ensure a constant supply of cheaper beer. It is interesting to note the situation of the plant so far out in the New Territories, and the management are to be congratulated on their choice. The site is ideal for its purpose while the picturesque surroundings enhance its value. In this connection the suggestion for the establishment of a beer garden at Sham Tseng Bay is attractive. Conveniently placed for the many motorists who use the Castle Peak Road, such a pleasant retreat would prove extremely popular. Provided that the management was proper and efficient, the authorities should have no grounds for objection.

ELECTRICAL 'LADDER' TO 'IONOSPHERE'

Measuring Forces 550
Miles Above Earth.

U. S. SCIENTIST'S CLAIM

New York.

An electrical "Jacob's Ladder," on which, it is claimed, man can climb to the outer reaches of the "ionosphere" 500 miles up and map out with delicate measuring tools the unexplored regions in the three shells of radiant energy supposed to be surrounding our planet, was described before the Institute of Radio Engineers recently in Chicago.

According to the "New York Times," the new "ladder" can record automatically the electrical state, or ionization, of the three upper layers around the earth beyond the stratosphere and determine their distances. With this new tool it is hoped not only to gain much new knowledge about radio transmission and reception but also to chart other regions in that cold land of mystery above the clouds. For example, it is hoped to measure for the first time the earth's magnetic forces up to distances of several hundred miles.—Reuter.

DREAM LEADS TO ARREST.

Widow Recovers Lost Inheritance.

Budapest.

The dream of a penniless widow has led to the arrest of the man who stole her inheritance.

Her husband the well-known artist Josef Rendl Rendl, died in 1927 and apparently left no estate.

Investigations, however, showed that he had had a deposit account with a credit balance of $1,000.

It was found that an unknown man had presented the deposit book and cashed the amount.

In a dream, the widow saw a friend of her husband at the counter of a bank. She informed the police who discovered that the friend seen in the dream was the wanted man.

He has now been arrested.—Reuter.

'FOOTBALL FEVER' VICTIM.

Italian Steals To Buy Kit.

Novara, Italy.

"Football fever," engendered by the Italy-England Soccer international, led Pietro Miglio, aged 19, into crime.

Miglio stole £3-10-0 from a shop till. When charged in court he said that he was a football "fan". He had got so excited about the Italy-England match that he stole the money to buy football kit for himself.

The court was unsympathetic and sent him to prison for two years.—Reuter.

CORAL FAVOURITE OF PRINCESS.

Worn In Coronet.

Naples.

Coral is the favourite ornament of the Crown Princess of Italy. She has entrusted the Director of the Royal School of Engraving with the task of removing the brilliants from one of her necklaces and substituting coral.

At an important reception recently her jewellery consisted entirely of coral both in her necklace and coronet.—Reuter.

ITALY'S CENTENARIAN INNKEEPER

Lived Through Reign Of Six Kings

Cassino (Italy).

Benedetto Valente, at one time a publican, but who vowed that he never drank beer, wine or spirits, has died here at the age of 104. Besides being an innkeeper, he became a monk, then emigrated to America and became a farmer. He lived through the reigns of six kings of Italy and five popes.

Last year Valente was visited by Senator Umberto Gabby, who questioned him closely about his long life, and then wrote a book entitled "How to Live to be 100."

Valente told the Senator that he ascribed his long life to the fact that he never drank beer, spirits, wine or coffee, and smoked only very rarely.—Reuter.

The Other Club

Recently "The Other Club" celebrated its 21st anniversary. There is nowhere in the world a club quite like this one. It was founded by Mr. Winston Churchill and the late Lord Birkenhead to provide a ground whereon political opponents might meet.

Mr. Lloyd George is chairman of the Wine Committee. Mr. J. H. Thomas is a member of the Club. So is Lord Kilsant, who was elected in 1916.

When Lord Kilsant was prosecuted in 1931 he resigned all his clubs. "The Other Club" refused to accept his resignation.

Lord Kilsant was present at the anniversary dinner. Among the fellow-members whom he met was Sir William Jovitt who, as Attorney-General, conducted the Crown case against him at his trial.

Fortnightly Dinners

The fifty members of "The Other Club" include many of the most distinguished men of our time. Bonar Law and Kitchener were both members. Two recent recruits are Sir Frederick Leith Ross and Sir Robert Vansittart.

The club dines once a fortnight, when Parliament is sitting, in the Pinafore Room at the Savoy. It has but three rules. These, in effect, are:

(1) The object of the club is to dine.

(2) Nothing in the intercourse of the members shall be allowed to interfere with the full asperities of Party politics.

(3) The names of the members of the Executive Committee shall be wrapped in impenetrable mystery.

Rule 2 is carried out both in the letter and in the spirit. Lord Charles Beresford and Mr. Winston Churchill met and spoke at "The Other Club" dinners when they were not on speaking terms anywhere else.

"Gerry" Ames

Mr. Gerald Ames, the actor, never seemed to have recovered from the shock a few months ago of seeing his leading lady burst into flames when on the stage with him. The poor girl lay for a long time between life and death.

"Gerry" Ames had many interests other than the stage. He was an otter-hunting enthusiast. He could tell one all about the habit of eels, partridges and herons. He could recognise and name any wild flower.

He was also a champion fencer, could fight with net and trident and was so good-natured that he merely smiled when he found himself described in print as "a well-known fence."

Few maiden speeches have impressed Parliament so much as that made in the House of Lords by Lord Mottistone, familiarly known for years as Major-General "Jack" Seely.

He spoke on the Metropolitan Police Bill, and in his racy and resonant voice told thrilling and dramatic stories of policemen rushing through showers of turpins and spanners to catch bandits.

Some peers seemed a trifle startled, but his racy manner soon broke down their reserve.

His voice could be heard all over the House, and Lord Halsam, congratulating him upon his brilliant first effort, paid particular tribute to this remarkable "audibility."

Dean of St. Paul's.

Dr. Inge has made no secret for some time past of the fact that he has been contemplating retirement from the deanery of St. Paul's.

In fact, at the St. Paul's dinner last January, he publicly stated that he would not be with his colleagues on the following St. Paul's Day. The probable date of his retirement has now been moved somewhat further into the future, and next summer is named as the probable time.

The health of Mrs. Inge has a good deal to do with the matter. For several months she has been in ill-health, and is at present away from home. Should her health be restored it would not surprise me to find the dean once more deferring the date of his retirement.

An Emperor's Vase.

Few objects at the exhibition of Chinese art at Messrs. Spink's galleries have excited more admiration than a glass vase standing 7in. high and brilliantly enamelled in famille-rose colours.

Its bag shape is held to symbolise plenty—which is appropriate since it was made for the personal use of the Emperor Kien-Lung.

The painting is the work of Ku Yueh Hsuan, the famous director of the Imperial glass factory established in the palace at Peking in 1680.

Forcible References

It is certainly evident that when Doyle and Petersen meet again, as assuredly they will, the referee must be prepared to step in decisively upon the slightest provocation.

Indeed, there are those who maintain that when young giants like Doyle are involved, the referee should be himself both fully trained and powerful.

He must, in fact, be able to make his guiding presence felt physically, as well as mentally, and if it comes to causing the fighters to break, he must break them by force if words are not prevailing.

Dogs for America

Mrs. Wills Moody, the Wimbledon champion, who is on her way back to New York, is taking with her a couple of Sealyham terriers. She seemed far more concerned about them and their comfort than such weighty matters as her intention to defend her title again next year.

English dogs are very popular in America, and every west-bound liner during the season carries its quota.

The Wrong Flag

What might have proved a very embarrassing misunderstanding was discovered in time yesterday at the Anglo Catholic service at the White City.

Some well-intentioned person had been anxious to fly the appropriate flag, but unfortunately put up the papal flag, and there it was fluttering in the breeze when the Centenary officials arrived. It was quickly hauled down and replaced by the proper flag of the bishop.

Dr. Rosenbach's Hospitality

Dr. Rosenbach, the purchaser of the Rosebery First Folio for $14,000, is a quiet pale-complexioned American with a perfect "poker-face," in that he has never been known to display on it any emotion whatever.

But both he and his brother are far from unemotional people, particularly when they are convinced that they have received any sort of kindness.

One of Dr. Rosenbach's methods of reciprocation is to put his magnificent apartment in New York, with its large staff of servants, at the disposal of his English friends, for as long as they require it. Another is to give literary dinner parties in London on a Hellogabalian scale.

It was at one of these that a Arnold Bennett for the first and last time, sang a song.

The Duke of Norfolk

Fifty years ago the colour of the Duke of Norfolk were carried by some of the finest horses in the country.

The present Duke, who is 25 looks like carrying on the family tradition. He was recently out on the Heath at Newmarket and rode his own horse Warlaw in a fast gallop over five furlongs.

Moreover, he is keenly interested in thoroughbred breeding, and was elected a steward of the Brighton, meeting a year ago. He has ridden frequently in public "over the sticks," and there is a possibility that he may ride in amateur races on the flat.

WOMAN'S FIGHT FOR NEW CALENDER

Present Irregular System
An "Inconvenience."
13 MONTHS NOT DESIRABLE

London. Every year, when the season for conferences begins in the capitals of Europe, a dainty silver-haired American woman packs her bag and crosses the Atlantic on a mission to which she has devoted her life.

She is Miss Elizabeth Achelis, President of the World Calendar Association of New York, and for the past four years she has been fighting against the people who want to impose a 13-month calendar on the world.

This summer she has been to the Congress of the International Chamber of Commerce in Vienna, to Rome to discover the attitude of the Vatican, to Geneva and now is off to Paris.

"Until 1929," she says, "I knew absolutely nothing about calendar reform. I set to work to learn all I could about it and the more I learn the more impressed I become with the inconvenience of our present irregular calendar and with the need for a reform. But the idea of having 13 months in the year seems to me to be an unnecessarily drastic change."

Miss Achelis' great hope is to get the new calendar legalised by 1939 because the first day of 1939 is a Sunday and this would mean the minimum of disturbance in the change over.—Reuter.

1,000,000 INSECTS PER MAN.

Something New In U.S.
Statistics.

Chicago. There are 1,000,000 insects per person in the United States, estimates the National Association of Insecticide and Disinfectant Manufacturers with satisfaction. The anti-insect men, in annual convention, viewed with joy the possibility that when summer is over the odds may be even greater—say about 1,500,000 insects to every human.

"Things are about right for a big insect invasion," said the Secretary of the association. He pointed to the recent rains and warmth as factors responsible for the increase of insects.

"This will greatly improve business conditions," he pointed out.—Reuter.

Social Register Reveals Effect Of Slump.

DECLINE IN HOLIDAYS ABROAD

New York. The Summer edition of the 1933 Social Register shows that many families of social prominence are remaining in their city homes during the hot months. Last year showed a large decrease in the number closing their town residences, but this year the situation is even more marked.

Travel abroad also shows a marked decline. In 1930 a total of 1,350 families was listed as spending the Summer abroad, but the number decreased steadily in three years and the figure this year is 824.

There is a small decrease in the ownership of yachts. Listed alphabetically in the back of the volume are 1,251 yachts as against 1,362 in 1931 and 1,303 last year.

The volume is published by the Social Register Association of 381 Fourth Avenue. In its 854 pages are listed the Summer or foreign addresses of prominent families in New York and 12 other large cities of the country.—Reuter.

SIR FLINDERS PETRIE AT GAZA TOMBS

Famous Archaeologist
In 81st. Year.

PROBING EGYPT'S HISTORY

London. Professor Sir Flinders Petrie, the archaeologist, who has just attained his eightieth birthday, has celebrated it by solving a riddle of history that has puzzled the world for thousands of years.

He has established the identity of the people who founded the seventh and eighth dynasties of Egypt.

This is one of the biggest discoveries he has made at Gaza, where he has been working during six months for the fourth year in succession.

Sir Flinders has developed an uncanny knack of deducing history from pieces of flint, bone and copper. This time a bronze dagger and two ladies' pins wrought in gold gave him the lost secret of Egyptian history.

"We discovered the dagger and the pins, which were used for fastening ladies' gowns, when we had uncovered the earliest of the five places at Gaza," said Sir Flinders.

"The dagger had beautiful raised veins running down the blade in perfect symmetry, and the pins' heads were done in remarkable workmanship. I was particularly struck by the raised veins on the dagger blade, which I thought could not be the work of the Copper Age man, who came after the Neolithic times."

Then a report of a discovery in the Caspian was shown to me, and in a flash I knew that I had hit upon the secret. "These people, one of the six races to conquer Egypt, came from the Caspian shores. Their workmanship showed their culture in the arts. They were a strong powerful race, and they must have had great skill in building, as their palace, which we have just uncovered, shows. It contains a luxurious bathroom with its stucco floor more or less intact."

The invading civilisation which Sir Flinders discovered is reckoned to have entered Egypt about 3,100 B.C.

Another discovery made by the Professor shows that gold torque work done by the ancient Celts in Ireland used to find its way to Gaza and Troy.—Reuter.

GOOD NEWS FOR GAMBLERS

Better And Brighter
Casinos In France.

BAN ON CERTAIN GAMES
MAY GO

Paris. Better and brighter casinos are just now the aim of the French Minister of the Interior.

There has of late been a considerable falling off in casino receipts, to the despair of the municipalities of towns where casinos exist, for a certain proportion of the profits is allotted to urban development schemes.

The fact that roulette and "trente et quarante" are allowed in certain foreign casinos, while they are forbidden in France has, it is considered, placed the French establishments at a disadvantage.

It is understood that the general administrative committee of the Chamber of Deputies and the Minister of the Interior are both in favour of adding the forbidden games to the existing boules and baccarat, at all events in the case of certain casinos such as those at Cannes, Vichy, Aix les Bains, Biarritz, and Deauville.—Reuter.

Ambition A Sign Of True Manhood

Past Is Training Ground
For The Future

IDLERS AND IDEALISTS

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

ALL through life, consciously or unconsciously, we find ourselves making comparisons. We compare one person with another, or one thing with another, or we judge them by a certain standard of values.

There is the tall man and the short man, the fat man and the lean man. The man who has brains and the one who is dead from the neck upwards. There is the sportsman who loves his games and plays them with his whole heart, and the fellow who prefers to loaf.

You have the man who plays the game of life with a straight bat, and the man who knows all the tricks of the trade, and uses them. The man you would trust with your last cent, and the one you would not trust around the nearest corner.

The man who faces life with a cheery smile and the other whose aspect of life, and general sweetness of character, would turn the milk in the depth of winter.

It is possible to go with these comparisons almost indefinitely, but I just want to add one more to the list, and it is this—The man who is forever being pushed through life and the one who is always being drawn on by the tremendous fascination of the things that lie ahead. In other words—the one who has no ambition in life and the one who has.

There are plenty of the former kind knocking about the world. You find them everywhere. They are always full of excuses to account for their condition and their position. It is always somebody's fault, never their own.

If they work it is only to keep body and soul together. They would rather live on charity than put their backs into a job of honest work and see it through. I am not referring now to those who through stress of economic conditions want to work and cannot. It is one of the most appalling evils of our day and as yet there seems no remedy.

I mean the type you find in all our great cities, and in the country too—the born idler, the sort of man who "comes all over queer" when some one mentions a spot of work—the kind you find lingering around, watching others dig a hole in the road.

Vision Necessary To Succeed.

Then there is the class of man a little nipper up again, men who are content to trudge along, taking the day as it comes, doing the minimum amount to ensure safety from punishment of one kind or another. The ones who clock in at the last possible minute, and keep one eye on the clock for the rest of the day. Afraid to take a step which might lead to a little more responsibility, because it means a little harder sticking at it.

When you boil it down to its foundations it is all due to lack of ambition. The man who has ambition is never satisfied with things as they are. He uses the past as the training ground for the future, by his mistakes he is always learning, by his experience he is paving the way to ultimate success. He is the man who has vision, and where there is no vision the people perish as is true of the individual as it is of a nation.

The British Empire to-day is the product of the vision of the great men of the past, who were not content to sit at home in idleness, but whose ears were open to the call of adventure, that call that has ever drawn the finest of them away beyond the skylines where the strange roads go down,—to the discovery of snow continents and seas of shoreless ice. Whose aim was not self but service.

Danger In Ambition.

Lots of men have ambition, but there is a danger which we have to guard—having the wrong kind. The kind that means self first and foremost—to succeed no matter what the cost is in the lives of others.

The overwhelming desire for money and place and power, has landed many a man in a prison cell, and many more would be there if they had their due reward. These things are perfectly right and proper in their own place if they are obtained in honest and open competition, and good luck to the ones who make good.

Just how much of the troubles in the world to-day are due to misplaced ambition would be hard to determine. What we are crying out for, in international, political and economic life to-day is men with a vision, men purged of personal self-seeking,—willing to stand for the high ideals of human brotherhood, ready to sink all for the common good, and the betterment of human life and conditions, men in short filled with the Spirit of Christ. Who was the greatest practical Idealist Who ever walked this earth of ours.

He had one great ambition all through that wondrous life,—to draw men and women to the feet of God,—to make them realize His Fatherhood and the great fact of human brotherhood, and the two go hand in hand.

Never Too Late To Start.

What is your ambition? You must have one. The nearer you approach to true manhood the higher your ambition will be, and the higher your ambition, the more nearly you will attain to the highest manhood.

Has the great urge that once filled your mind faded and died away? Are you settling down into a groove—what is, must be—Kismet has spoken—the die is cast. There is nothing in life so sad as to see those whose hopes once beat high, gradually allowing circumstances to overwhelm them, and starting to drift. If it has happened to you, thank God, you can still pull up and start again. You never know what may be waiting for you just around the next corner, if only you don't lose heart, and keep slogging on.

Then what of the inner life? Has the vision grown dim with the lengthening shadows of human life? Have we lost the touch we once had with the things that we know make for our peace? Well a little more prayer won't wear out our knees, a little closer following will lighten the burden of life's load.

"Think truly, And thy thoughts shall the world's great famine feed. Speak truly, And each word of thine shall be a fruitful seed. Live truly, And thy life shall be a great and noble creed."

And no one can have a finer or more noble ambition than that.

ICEBERGS DRIFTING SOUTH GRIM FIGHT AGAINST SEA MOUNTAINS

HOW SHIPS ARE PROTECTED

By "LANYARD"

(Commander of a North Atlantic Liner.)

THIS is the season of the year when the mighty icebergs drift south to menace shipping on the North Atlantic trade routes.

The bergs are part of the great Greenland ice-cap, which covers the whole of the interior of that country. Explorers estimate the ice-cap to have a thickness of 1,000 to 5,000 feet, and an elevation, in places, of over 9,000 feet. It is formed by the accumulation of snow through the ages, the weight of which causes a modification of the snow crystal, and welds it into a solid mass of ice.

Indeed, all Greenland may be regarded as a gigantic glacier, with arms stretching down into the fjords on the coast-line. Urged on by gravity and terrific pressure from the interior, the glacier arms carve their way slowly into the sea. At this stage they are known as ice-tongues. Protruding still further into deeper water, they gradually become water-borne.

Then, owing to sea and tidal disturbances, and their own enormous weight, huge masses break off, or are "calved" from the parent glacier. This icebergs are born.

Driven By Currents.
The movements of bergs are mainly controlled by the set of prevailing currents. The direct effect of wind upon their drift is negligible, because the greater portion of their mass is immersed. Indirectly, however, wind plays an important part, by stirring or accelerating the currents.

Once afloat, the bergs are caught in the East Greenland current and carried round Cape Farewell, and northwards to Baffin Bay. Here, they come under the influence of a south-moving stream, fed by Arctic water through the Smith and Lancaster Sounds, and known as the Labrador Current, which carries some of them south as far as the "tail" of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

This journey, of approximately 2,000 miles, takes about nine months, that is, from the time when the bergs are liberated in early summer to the following spring. But for part of that time they may be frozen in by enormous fields of pack-ice on the coast. Taking this into consideration, their rate of drift has been estimated at about one knot.

Fortunately, a great number of bergs run aground on the rocky coasts or on the shallow northern parts of the Banks, and hundreds of others drift into Hudson's Bay and the Straits of Belle Isle. It is computed that during a normal ice-year roughly only 300 bergs ever drift south of Newfoundland, and of these only about fifty reach the tail of the Banks.

Here they get into the warm waters of the Gulf Stream, which soon finishes them off: a large berg dwindles away in about two weeks. This region is notorious for the density and duration of its fogs, which are caused by the warm, moisture-laden winds over the Gulf Stream striking the cold air over the Labrador Current.

The density of icebergs varies. In some the snow is not so completely transformed into ice as in others. Some, too, carry appreciable loads of rock material.

A berg, if composed of pure ice, would float with about one-ninth of its mass out of water. Recent research by Professor H. T. Barnes shows that from one-sixth to one-tenth the volume of Greenland bergs consists of air, causing them to displace less water than ordinary ice.

It was found that many bergs float with as much as one-third of their mass out of water. Of 87 bergs measured shortly after calving from the Greenland glaciers, the highest was found to be 440 feet above the surface. Their height decreases rapidly once they are afloat, and in one instance a difference of fourteen feet was observed in seven days. The highest berg noted by the International Ice Patrol in the vicinity of the Banks was 248 feet, and the longest 1,690 feet, this after travelling roughly 2,000 miles.

Danger Lurks In Fog.

Contrary to general opinion there is no sure means of telling when a ship is near a berg in fog. The sighting of "growlers" (large lumps of ice) or "scum" ice, or the presence of numerous sea-fowl, or an echo from the steam whistle, may give some indication, but cannot be relied on.

The temperature of the sea is no guide. It is, in fact, frequently higher when near a berg. The melting of a berg causes the surrounding water to sink by cooling, and draws to itself the warmer surface water, thereby contributing to its own destruction.

In clear weather a berg would be seen, from a steamer's bridge, 15 or 20 miles away. In fog it might not be seen 20 yards, and would appear as a dark, sombre shape. On a dark night with no moon, a berg might be visible at one mile. Sometimes, under such conditions, "ice blink" reveals a berg. This is an effulgence reflected from the ice and seen in the sky above the berg, but it is both rare and very uncertain.

A berg disintegrates by breaking up gradually into pieces. When a "growler" is calved, the process is preceded by sharp cracking sounds. A loud roar is heard when the growler finally breaks off and plunges into the sea, causing tremendous effervescence and innumerable air-bubbles, while the freshly exposed side of the berg blisters rapidly.

Rolling, cracking, roaring, and sometimes turning completely over as it adjusts itself to loss of weight and equilibrium, the berg gradually dwindles away until it is no longer a danger to shipping.

13 Nations Share Expense.
The International Ice Patrol was inaugurated in 1912 as the result of the Titanic disaster. The United States Government were invited to undertake the operation of the patrol, the expense to be (Continued on Page 9.)

THE INVITATION.

"Hello Moses," said Cohen, when he met his friend in the street one day. "You are just the man I wanted to see. You are coming to my Rachel's twenty-first birthday party, aren't you?"

"Vell," Moses hesitated, "I don't think I can manage it—"

"Oh, but you must. My Rachel will be so disappointed if you don't. She particularly wants you to be there, and, after all, she'll only have one twenty-first birthday in her life."

"Oh, vell," said Moses, looking gratified at being pressed so much to honour the proceedings with his presence, "perhaps I can manage it, after all."

"That's fine!" cried Rachel's father. "And ven you come, just kick on the door—vell hear you."

"Kick on the door? Vell, can't I knock with my hands, like any other time?"

"Vell, Moses," said the other, reproachfully, "how can you use your hands with your arms full of presents?"

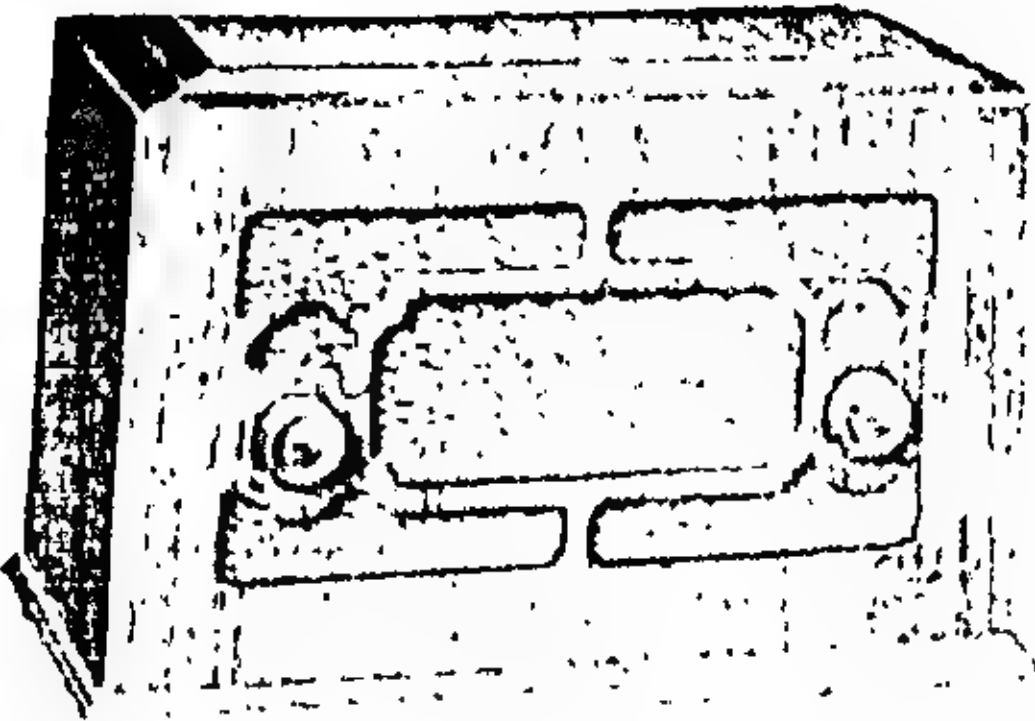

"OVALTINE" Rusks, because of their delicious flavour, digestibility and very high nutritive value, may be taken with advantage at any time. With cheese, butter or potted meat they comprise an ideal light repast. They are so crunchy and crisp.

Baked to the right degree of hardness, these Rusks contain a proportion of "Ovaltine" which gives them a delicious flavour, as well as making them easy to digest and highly nourishing. They are made from unbleached, unadulterated wheat flour, from which none of the nutritive properties have been removed by the process of grinding, and have been demonstrated to be the best of all rusks.

That is why you should insist on "Ovaltine" Rusks. The youngsters like them, too!

ICEBERGS DRIFTING SOUTH

shared by 13 maritime countries, each paying in proportion to the amount of its own shipping tonnage. The work is carried out by two United States coastguard cutters, and has functioned faithfully each year except 1917 and 1918, when it was suspended owing to the exigencies of the war.

In addition to keeping track of the southernmost bergs, so that ships may pass clear, the scientists on board the cutters have collected much valuable information on such subjects as ocean currents, prevailing winds, movements of bergs and field-ice, temperature and salinity of sea-water at different depths, sizes and density of bergs above and below water,
viability, echoes, disintegration,
and the utilisation of exploding
mines to destroy bergs.

All merchant ships entering the ice region are invited to supply information to the patrol every four hours on air and water temperatures, the state of wind and sea, barometer reading, the ship's course and speed, and position of any ice sighted.

On board the cutters "all such information is plotted on a large-scale chart, and the results are broadcast several times daily to all ships.

South China Mixed Relay Team Triumph

The gala was one of the best organised by the Club this season, and provided many thrilling finishes, especially in the Men's 200 Metres Club Championship, which was won by Ng Wah-chun,
and in the Inter-Department Relay.
In the relay event South
China fielded a very strong team, which was comprised of Miss Yeung Sau-king and Miss Yeung Sau-chun, Kwok
Chan-hang and Chan Ki-chun,
of the Canton South China Athletic Association, who swam a brilliant race to beat E. R. de Roza by a touch in the last lap.

At the conclusion of the gala,
Squadron-Commander Tang Yuet-ming, who was the donor of the prizes, made a short speech congratulating the entrants on their excellent showing before he presented the prizes.

Lionel Soares is Butt's closest rival for the honours. His tremendous arm power and stamina are his chief assets. He has also put in quite a good deal of training and is now master of his board in the approved style. The ability to balance the surfboard is fully half the battle, for once having obtained this the rider is free to concentrate on his paddling.
"Fighting the board," as it is termed, will cost a competitor the race, especially in the 100 yards event.

Lionel Roza-Perreira, W.
Lawrence and T. Paget, in that order, are the next best men in the event. Lawrence is handicapped by not having a suitable board, which places him behind Roza-Perreira on the list.
The latter, in spite of his many splendid swimming performances,
must take second place to Soares,
who has superior pulling power and length of stroke. Lionel, however, has a new board which is reputed to be exceptionally fast and light, and, given a race without even to balance the board, he might even tie with Soares. Roza-Perreira will, however, encounter some little difficulty with his board if the water is not perfectly calm, as it weighs but 30 pounds.

The Half-Mile Favourites

Butt is also the favourite for the Half Mile event. Months of training at Repulse Bay have developed this swimmer to the height of physical fitness. Soares will probably be second.

The two turns, around the rafts, which have to be negotiated in the race, will be the deciding factors in this race.

It has been calculated that at least 7 secs. are required to manoeuvre the surfboard around those right-angled turns, and a lead may be lost or gained after this has been passed.

In this longer race, Roza-Perreira will probably fill the third place.
A keen tussle will be seen between this smaller rider and W. Lawrence, who is very capable over this distance.

The Relay Races.

The relay races should prove extremely exciting. Miss Doris Hunt should carry off the ladies 100 yards event without much trouble. Stanley Lee and one of the Anello brothers should provide a good finish in the boys' race, and W. Tanner is almost certain to walk away with the "old men's" race.

The races can be clearly witnessed from the beach. The Inspector General of Police, the Hon.
Mr. E. D. C. Wolfe, C.M.G., has granted permission to the organisers of the Regatta to hold the races and has allocated the portion required for the course. As many as 30 stewards will be in attendance to line the course and prevent wandering bathers.

I do not take tennis seriously. When a game is taken seriously it ceases to be a game, and you cease to enjoy it.
—Jean Borotra.

BABE RUTH HIT BY PITCHER

Yankees Break Sequence Of Defeats.

FOXX HITS 37TH HOMER

New York, Yesterday.
Babe Ruth, home run king in 1931 and the biggest draw to any baseball crowd in America, was forced to retire from the game between the Yankees and the Browns yesterday when his right leg was painfully bruised by a low delivery from the pitcher. The "King of Swat" has suffered more injuries than any other ball player this season.

The Yankees, in spite of the loss of their star batter, broke their sequence of six defeats by beating the Browns by an 8 to 3 tally.
Washington Senators, however, beat the White Sox by a 6 to 4 margin.

Jimmy Foxx, 1932 home run king, banged out his 37th four-bagger of the season. He now leads Babe Ruth by 10 in the home run parade.

The game between St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies was abandoned on account of rain.

A HOME WITHOUT 'ASPRO' MEANS GREAT RISK FOR EVERY MEMBER

If "ASPRO" is not in your home, it should be, in YOUR interest.
It should be there to dispel attacks of pain, it should be there to break up colds and influenza when they first appear — it should be there as a guarantee of sweet sleep to the sleepless. "ASPRO" is not just a soother of pain in 5 to 10 minutes. Its mission is far greater and deeper, for it dispels the cause of the pain and so prevents the development of serious illness. Its service in reducing feverishness is of great moment. Keep "ASPRO" in the house and you keep out illness as well as soothing away pain. These are facts demonstrated by thousands. A trial will demonstrate it to you, too. "ASPRO" Tablets are easy to take — there are no harmful after-effects — they create no craving — no nausea — no digestive troubles — they just do their work of soothing away the pain and of dispelling or dissolving the cause, leaving Nature to go unhindered in her great progress of activity, healing and expression. "ASPRO" not only stops the pain, but it saves your money
— it enables you to work when otherwise you could not have worked — it is the medicine of the new age — safe, sure and effective. It stands up to all claims made for it. "ASPRO" stops illness and stops pain.

"ASPRO" DOES NOT HARM THE HEART

It Can Be Taken at any Time — Anywhere

Always Keep "Aspro" handy for Emergency

What 'ASPRO' Does:

1 It Stops Violent Head aches in 5 to 10 minutes	9 A hot lemon drink with 2 or 3 'ASPRO' Tablets will smash up a Cold or Flu attack in one night.
2 It Brings Sweet Sleep to the Sleepless	10 It Reduces Temperature in 5 minutes.
3 It Relieves Rheumatism in one night.	11 It can be taken at any time, in Train, Home, at Office — anywhere — everywhere.
4 It Relieves Children's Growing Pains.	12 It gives the greatest relief ever known to women at their times of periodical depres- sion.
5 It Saves many a Sound Tooth by Removing Toothache.	13 It Stops the ill After-Effects of Alcohol
6 It Brings Relief without causing sickness, indi- gestion or a craving.	14 It relieves Drowsy and Mal- lows by reducing the fever.
7 It Stops Pain without harm- ing the Heart	15 As a Great 'ASPRO' is worth 100 of the old Aspirin.
8 It soothes away Irritability.

anywhere else in the ocean. They had seen several during the day, as well as schools of porpoises chasing the shoals of flying-fish, and the girl was thrilled with excitement at the idea.

He took a final stroll on the first-class deck and was the last to turn in. On entering his cabin he switched on the light as usual and noticed to his surprise that his suit-case was not in its normal position. He stooped to examine it only to find the locks had been picked. He at once went through his belongings and found everything in order with the exception of the Chinese knife. That had gone.

He began another search when a slight noise behind him attracted his attention. He turned to meet the menacing gaze of a lascar in whose hand was the missing weapon. Geoffrey was unarmed, but remembering that attack is the best means of defence, he flung himself at the intruder and grasped the arm which held the knife. Both men strained to the utmost, but Geoffrey was the stronger and wrenched the knife from the lascar's grasp, dropping it on the floor. The latter then made a sudden successful dart and dashed for deck. Geoffrey was after him, but was not so nimble. His assailant had almost escaped when he tripped over a coil of rope on the main deck. He was up at once, but the delay gave Geoffrey his chance, and he closed. The lascar now appeared to give up all thoughts of escape and fought like a fiend. They swayed together over the bulwarks, when the Oriental suddenly swung himself overboard, dragging Geoffrey with him. As they hurtled through the air Geoffrey managed to yell, "Man overboard!" And then the waters closed over his head as he sank down, down, still clutched by his adversary.

His lungs felt like bursting when he found his head above water once more. But it was only for an instant. The lascar managed to get him under again. The sudden plunge into the sea had dazed Geoffrey for the moment, and his senses were numbed. Then he realised that his opponent's object was to drown him irrespective of his own fate. He was the better swimmer, but Geoffrey was quite at home in the water, and succeeded in getting both hands on his enemy's throat. Once more they were on the surface, and Geoffrey took a double lungful of the refreshing air. His grip was like a vice, and he could feel the other's efforts weaken. His one aim was the lascar's death, and he held his head down. He could feel the convulsive chokings of the throat between his fingers. Again they went under, and on coming up this time Geoffrey saw a great glare in front of him. For a second he was nonplussed, but then he remembered the night-flares of a lifebuoy.

Suddenly there was a swirl underneath him. He felt some great lascar's struggles ceased and the body hit his legs. All at once the body became unaccountably light. Then Geoffrey understood. A shark had become his ally for the moment. He still clutched his adversary's throat, but the man's arms waved inertly, to and fro. His body from below the chest was missing.

Geoffrey flung the gnastly remains from him with a loud cry, and splashed with all his strength. There was another sickening swirl. It could have but one meaning—the shark had completed its work.

Geoffrey shouted and splashed with renewed efforts, and after a few seconds which seemed like all eternity he clutched the lifebuoy, and dragged himself up so that he could sit upon it.

The sea was calm, and he could now see two more lifebuoys flaring within a few hundred yards, while there, over half a mile away, were the unmistakable lights of the GANGETIC.

He was in desperate peril, but if he could only keep the sharks away for a few minutes more he would be safe. The struggle and long submersions under water had taxed his strength and he was very feeble. Would the steamer never come? Had no boat been lowered? He splashed for all he was worth, and shouted again. The only answer was a great swirl within ten feet. Again he splashed and shouted, and this time there was an answering call.

It was not far distant, and gave Geoffrey a new lease of strength. He splashed heavens, how he splashed; shouting aloud the while. The seconds dragged by, oh! so slowly, and then there was that answer once more, this time close at hand. "All right! All right! Keep it up! Splash! We're here!" Splash, indeed. What else had he been doing for hours and hours?

MOTORING NOTES.

Carry A Fire Appliance!

Motor-vehicle owners should pay more attention to risk of fire.

The wise man is he who fits some efficient form of fire-extinguisher on his car and does not wait until a fire occurs before realising the value of such a device.

But he would not give in. Surely it would only be another minute. He splashed again as for the fourth time he felt a swirl close at hand. Fifty seconds longer. Could he hold out? Yes, yes. Hang it all, yes! Splash. Forty seconds. He could hear the creaking of the rowlocks as the boat sped towards him. Thirty seconds. One more splash. The water around him was beaten up with carblades. His shoulders were seized, this time in a friendly grasp, and he was dragged to safety over the boat's bow.

British Cars At Le Mans

Although Italy won the first three places in this year's Grand Prix Endurance at Le Mans, five small British cars distinguished themselves by being among the 13 competitors who finished this gruelling race out of a total of 29 starters.

Particularly sporting was the effort of A. H. Langley, of Stourbridge, who, with F. S. Barnes, covered 1,180 odd miles with his Singer Nine sports model in the 24 hours at an average speed of 49.4 m.p.h. Incidentally, this was lowest priced car in the race and its sterling performance enabled it to qualify for next year's event.

In 1904 there were 1,000 motorists in Manchester. Now there are 25,000.

WOMEN'S CONTRIBUTION TO THE MOTOR CAR

There is some doubt that people care to hear very much about what goes on under the hoods of their cars. The driver knows that "driving qualities" are not accidental; they are put there. How the manufacturer creates or evolves those results may not interest him. He judges entirely by the results he gets in driving.

Well, it is not essential to talk "shop"; let us talk Results. Smoothness. Drive the Ford V-8 and you will find that the engine runs with surpassing smoothness, due to its design and the extra precise methods of its manufacture.

Power. There it is, 75 horsepower (we could say 80) at the drive-shaft for the driver's use. With less weight to pull around, the mottle of this car—its life-like response—is rather remarkable.

Economy. Our V-8 develops more power on a gallon of gasoline than any car we have made. Mileage is partly a matter of individual driving, but under average conditions the Ford V-8 does 17 to 20 miles a gallon. Of course, car economy is not only a matter of fuel. Ford V-8 has that too, but it is also economical in the complete sense—initial cost, operation, maintenance.

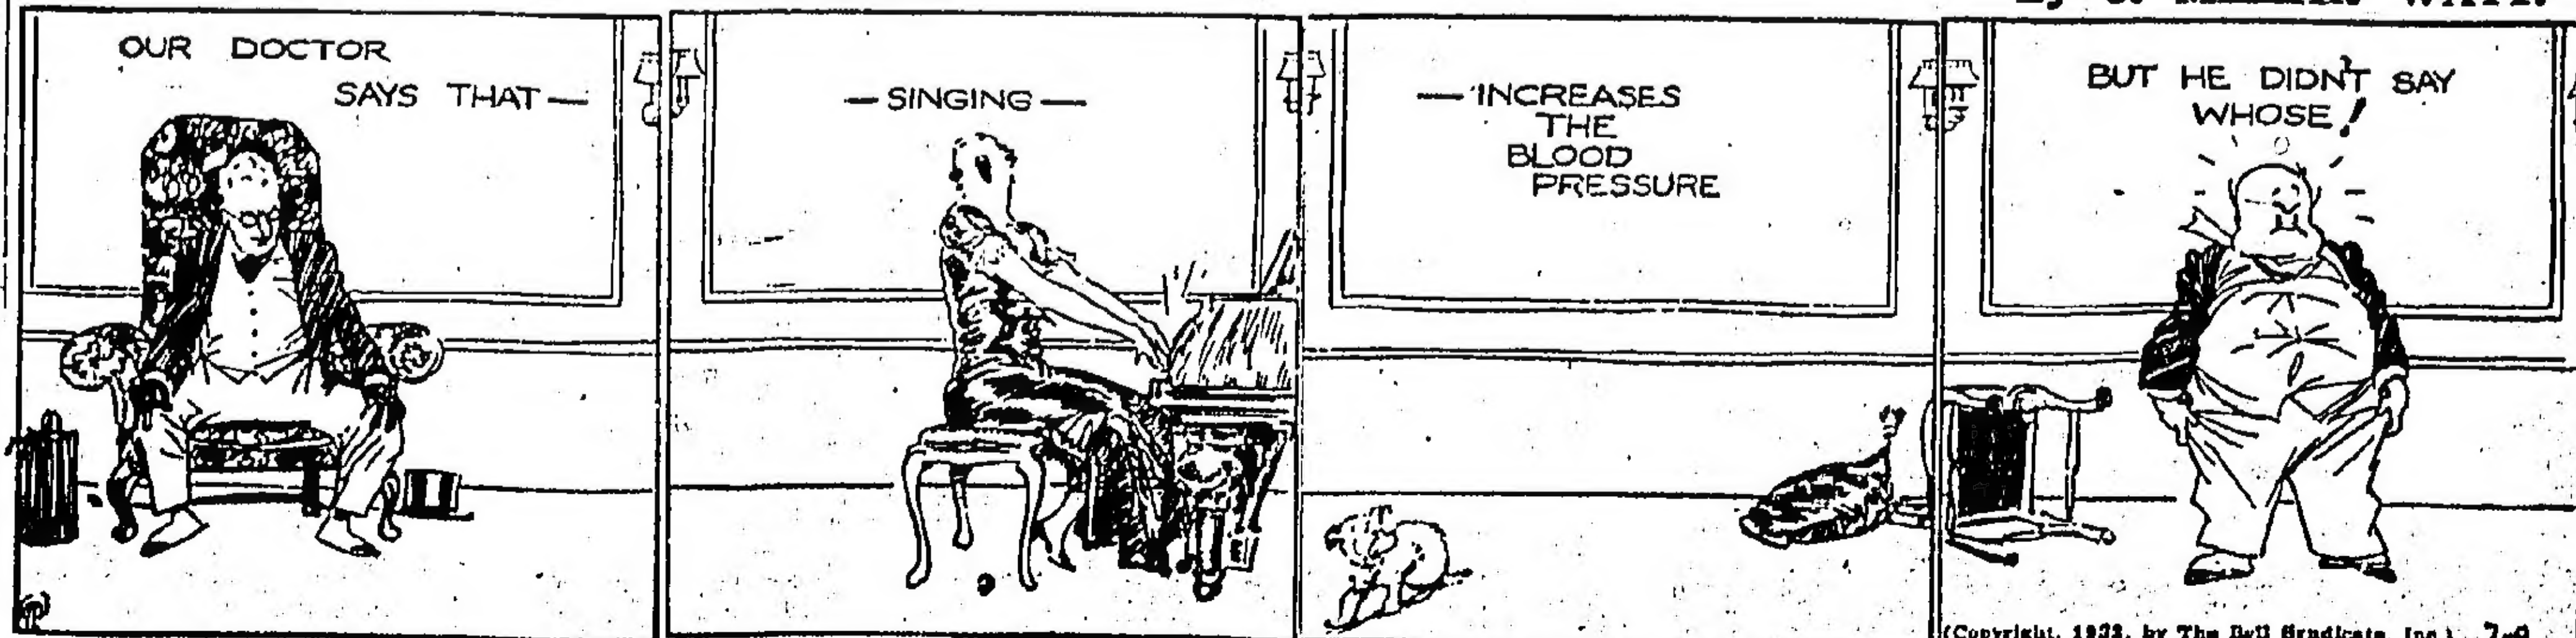

Appearance. This is woman's contribution. The motor car must not only be useful, but also good-looking. View the Ford V-8 and you will not need our comment on its fine appearance.

Comfort. This also is woman's concern. In 30 years she changed the motor car from a wagon to a coach. Comfort is a quality made up of numerous ingredients. There is no comfort without a quiet, smooth-running engine. We have all the other ingredients too—color, good taste, quality, ease, safety, roominess and convenience.

Carveth wells, explorer extraordinary, scientist, lecturer author and humorist, who does the talking in the Century Productions African wild animal sound picture supreme, "The Jungle Killer" showing at the Central Theatre today is well-known as the man who can make the truth sound like a lie. He has devoted the last ten years of his life telling strange stories of other lands, telling them in such a way as to cause wonderment and stimulate research.

Mr. Wells was born in Surrey, England, taught civil engineering in London, and spent much of his early life working in Canada and the United States. He was married in Canada and took his wife to spend six years with him while he served as a surveying engineer in the Malay jungle.

In 1924 he headed an expedition to Lapland for the American Museum of Natural History, and the next summer went to Bermuda at the request of the Bermudan Government to make a special study of the island. Next year he "discovered" the Mediterranean, the account of this amusing expedition resulting in his book "Let's Do the Mediterranean," he was the leader of the massee Expedition of the Chicago Geographical Society which went to the Mountain of the Moon in Central Africa to collect rare animal specimens and scientific data to dispel the popular conception of Central Africa as a steaming jungle.

SIR MILES LAMPSON PROMOTED

High Commissioner
For Egypt.

WILL NOT LEAVE CHINA
BEFORE NOVEMBER

London, Yesterday.

His Majesty the King has approved the appointment of Sir Miles Lampson, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at Peking, to be His Majesty's High Commissioner for Egypt and Sudan.

Sir Miles Lampson, who entered the Foreign Office in 1903 and later held posts in Tokio, Peking, Sofia and elsewhere, has been British Minister in China since 1926.

In 1921 he was attached to the British Delegation to the Washington Disarmament Conference, and in 1915 to the Locarno Conference.

The appointment to Cairo of a professional diplomat of such wide experience gives assurance that the cordial Anglo-Egyptian relations which have subsisted during the past four years will continue, and that the change at the Residency implies no change of British policy.—British Wireless Service.

Sir Miles Praised In London.

“PRINCE OF PACIFICATORS”

London, Yesterday.

“The Prince of Pacificators,” a description once applied to Sir Miles Lampson by Sir Austen Chamberlain, and the “Super Diplomat” are two of the phrases used in the general eulogistic comments occasioned by Sir Miles Lampson's new appointment.

“The Times” refers to his high reputation for ability, and the firmness with which he dealt with the ever-changing situation in China and his successful formula resulting in the Sino-Japanese truce in Shanghai in March, last year.

Both the “Morning Post” and the “Daily Herald” infer from the appointment of a Diplomat that the Government is to continue the present Egyptian policy.—Reuter.

Sir Miles To Leave At End Of Year.

NO CHANGE OF POLICY
IN EGYPT.

Reuter is informed that Sir Miles Lampson is unable leave China before November, and expects to take up his new post at Cairo before the end of the year.

It is further learned from official circles that the fact that a diplomatist has been appointed to Cairo, does not indicate any change in policy.

The retiring Commissioner is Sir Percy Loraine. The question of a successor to Sir Miles Lampson is under consideration.—Reuter.

ENTERED FOREIGN OFFICE IN 1903.

Sir Miles Lampson, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.M.G., M.V.O., has been British Minister to China since 1926. Born in 1880, he was educated at Eton, and entered the Foreign Office in 1903. In 1906 he was appointed Secretary to the Garter Mission to Japan, and from 1908 to 1910 was 2nd. Secretary to the British Embassy at Tokyo.

In 1911 he was transferred to Sofia, but returned to the Far East again in 1916 as First Secretary to the Peking Embassy. He was appointed Acting British High Commissioner in Siberia in 1920.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Morrison taking off from Pendine Sands on their attempt to fly non-stop to New York. After a brilliant Atlantic crossing they were forced down at Bridgeport, Connecticut, 60 miles from New York. Their machine was completely wrecked, but the two occupants escaped serious injury.—(S. & G.).

JAPAN AND RUSSIA NOT PREPARING FOR WAR

Banff Delegates Talk Peace
On Behalf Of Tokyo

Banff, Alberta, Yesterday. Mr. Inazo Nitobe, Chairman of the Japanese group at the Institute of Pacific Relations, which opened here on Monday last under the Chairmanship of Sir Robert Falconer, has denied the statement credited to him that Japan and Russia are preparing for war. “I talk peace, not war,” he declared.

Other Japanese delegates emphasised that Japan did not intend to prepare for war. The policy is definitely one of peace, they assert.—Reuter.

London, Yesterday.

Yorkshire have won the County Cricket Championship for the third year in succession, and for the eighth time in fifteen years. Founded in 1863 the Yorkshire C. C. have carried off the title on 17 occasions, their first win being recorded in 1893.
